

Dominion Energy to Publish Climate Report Later This Year

Later this year, Dominion Energy will publish a new report that will highlight progress to date on climate initiatives and potential ways to further reduce the company's carbon footprint and provide cleaner energy to our customers.

The report will include a hypothetical scenario analysis that shows the potential effect of a low-carbon economy on the company's electric generation fleet. Analysis of this sort is often referred to as a "two degree" scenario and stems from the Paris Climate Agreement established by the United Nations in 2015. The Paris Climate Agreement lays out a template for limiting the rise in average global temperature to less than two degrees Celsius above pre-industrial levels.

Please stay tuned and visit our Environment website to learn more about Dominion Energy's commitment to a more sustainable energy future.